Terrasynth Bursts onto Web Graphics Scene with Excitingly
Life-Like 3D Animation and Interactive Graphics

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Web design studios can now offer the most advanced and life-like 3D animation and effects to their clients without the need to add staff or re-train existing staff.

TERRASYNTH, LLC., has officially opened its doors and unleashed a storm of highly-sophisticated computer graphics services aimed at web design studios who value quality and understand the role 3D graphics and animation play in accelerating online sales. Not only does Gainesville, Fla.-based TERRASYNTH, LLC., produce incredibly life-like three-dimensional images and animations for web sites, they've also launched a high-payout affiliate program that allows web designers and other media producers to resell TERRASYNTH's dynamic graphics services as their own.

TERRASYNTH, LLC., founder Nathan Gilder has gathered together a group of astounding artists and animators from around the globe in order to provide the world's best web design studios with the highest-quality 3D images, 3D graphics, and interactive 3D presentations for the web. TERRASYNTH, LLC., offers freelance, part-time and seasonal work to professional artists working in film post-production, gaming and related industries. The current team consists of five artists from the U.S. and Germany who are unsurpassed in their field. Since its opening, TERRASYNTH, LLC., has been asked to work with design studios from around the world, including the U.S., Canada, UK., and Australia.

Web design studios that choose to work with TERRASYNTH, LLC., understand the growing importance of three-dimensional presentations in e-commerce and that products and services using 3D presentations and interactive displays outsell those that don't by up to 25 %.

“Our experience with TERRASYNTH has been eye opening and inspirational. I feel that their process and command within the realm of digital design and animation are unparalleled in the field,” said Cameron Thomas, CEO of Creative Root. “They make our projects shine, the clients pleased and our firm look like champions.”

With 3D graphics and animation from TERRASYNTH, LLC., a company can give full product demonstrations on its web site. Interactive modules allow customers to engage with the demonstration to customize features like color, texture and more. Three-dimensional interactive simulations allow a customer to visualize how they will be able to use and benefit from a company's product or service. The customer actually becomes a part of the sales process by telling the demonstration what features he or she needs. This gives customers a better understanding of the product or service so that they have more confidence in their purchase. This leads to more sales and fewer returns or refund requests and a significant increase in a company's bottom line.

TERRASYNTH, INC., is selective about the web design studios they work with, choosing only those with professional standards, experience and quality that match their own. TERRASYNTH, INC., prefers to work with design studios rather than client companies so as not to dilute the market for high-quality web design. Instead they focus on producing the most dynamic and highest quality 3D graphics possible.

"We are focused tightly on 3D imaging and interactive animation for the web, because quality comes from focus," Gilder said. "TERRASYNTH was established by 3D artists who joint venture with designers to provide exceptional content that neither group can produce alone."

TERRASYNTH, INC., forms its partnerships using an affiliate program format that allows web design studios to market TERRASYNTH's graphics as their own. This enables partner companies to take advantage of TERRASYNTH's specialized graphics at a discounted rate and focus on producing high-quality web design for their clients. TERRASYNTH, INC., has developed a unique production process that makes inserting its 3D graphics into partners' web designs simple and seamless.
